Triple-fronted family freedom in a not so typically 1960s layout - all courtesy of a subtle garage conversion, doubling the home's living spaces - in a country find defined by its quiet, creek-side 973sqm setting.

Beyond the double brick build are lovely traits that conventional mid-century homes absolutely master - polished pine floorboards, high ceilings, big rooms framed by big sunlit sash windows, ornate ceiling roses and walls of inbuilt storage.

And when it comes to robes, all four generous, carpeted bedrooms are duly equipped.

Left of entry, three of them converge on the one and only
